Welcome to your Treasure Map for eating fresh food. Use as a guide to find the offerings for your next meal from Island farmers and shop. This year, rather than just fresh locally produced vegetables, poultry, meat, shellfish, eggs, and cheese, you will also find hundreds of fresh-made foods, preserves, fresh mushrooms, fresh flowers, and many other specialities. This year, the island hosts 3 dozen produce farms, several with meat and dairy offerings, and a new shellfish farm industry. Take a drive, bike or long walk to explore the bounty the island offers, enjoying the stories and skiing of the Island – first hand.

Martha’s Vineyard, called “Woopie” or “In the Midst of the Sea” by the Wampanoag Tribe, is 20 miles long & 3 miles wide, and hosts 6 distinctive towns, each with its own character. From the 1960s to the 1980s, more than 50 percent of the land was in farming, and up to a dozen farms supplied all of the milk, most of the eggs, and some of the meat consumed by islanders and summer residents. Today, the island hosts 3 dozen produce farms, several with meat and dairy offerings, and a new shellfish farm industry.
